DON'T CHOOSE 'THE CHOSEN'

A baptist pastor-friend forwarded to me an email he received recently promoting 'THE CHOSEN' – a TV series designed supposedly to introduce millions to the life of Jesus'. This was the email –

Hi there,

I lead KOVA, the communications agency representing The Chosen in the UK. As you may know, The Chosen has become a remarkable global phenomenon, introducing millions of people to the life of Jesus through long-form storytelling. Beyond its success as a television series, we have seen it become a genuine catalyst for faith conversations, parish discussion groups and renewed engagement with the Church.

We have also been honoured to receive a letter from the Holy Father in support of the project, recognising its contribution to bringing the Gospel to contemporary audiences.

We wondered whether there might be an opportunity to meet with you, or with colleagues responsible for evangelism, to explore how The Chosen might serve the Church's mission in the UK and Ireland. Our interest is not simply in promoting a television series, but in discussing how it might be used as a practical tool for evangelisation, helping people who have drifted away from faith, or who are curious about Jesus, to take a first step towards engaging with parish life and the wider Church.

We would be delighted to share what has been happening internationally, examples of how Catholic parishes are using the series, and discuss whether there are opportunities to support similar initiatives here. If this would be of interest, I would be very grateful for the opportunity to arrange a short meeting at a time convenient to you or your team.

With every blessing

If you are not familiar with 'THE CHOSEN' there are helpful articles on his link which expose the many spiritual dangers of this series – <https://christianresearchnetwork.org/?s=the+chosen&submit=Search>

For me there was one statement in the email that encapsulated why 'THE CHOSEN' should not be chosen by true believers and it was this –

'We have also been honoured to receive a letter from the Holy Father in support of the project, recognising its contribution to bringing the Gospel to contemporary audiences.'

This from the man who has been 'wooing' the crowds in recent days in France, adorned in his flowing (no doubt expensive) robes and travelling around in his closely guarded popemobile and who proclaims a 'false gospel'.

The 'UK and Ireland' does not need 'THE CHOSEN'!

PS The local group 'CROWN JESUS MINISTRIES' promoted The Chosen last December in Belfast and I wrote a warning article about that which can be viewed on this link –
